A STUTTERING WATTER .- " Aleck," a solored waiter at Elwood's, on Bank street, and one of the bost of restaurant waiters, too, is a fearful stutteror. Last evening a stranger came to Elwood and said : "That waiter | the shoals. ought to be discharged," pointing to "Aleek." "What for?" asked Tom, "For lying," was the reply. "He told me my oyster stew would be ready in half a minute and it took him four minutes to tall it."

GETTING TO THE REAR .- In a battle, if a seldier receives a shot that does not disable the readiness of our forces at Carifux Sta-him from walking, he generally goes to the rear. The movement is not always performed with safety. A soldier who was in the batthe of Fredericksburg, tells of a comrade who, receiving two shots in the fight, started for ty, he had received five more shots, making seven in all. None of them proved fatal, however; which shows that a man may approximate the condition of a pepper-box covor and yet live.
